*The British Association for the Advancement of Science met in 1874 in Belfast. It proved to be a momentous occasion. John Tyndall, Professor of Natural Philosophy at the Royal Institution, delivered the presidential address on the evening of August 19 th.. Tyndall's topic was the relationship of science, past and present, to philosophical materialism.

Bernard Lightman, "On Tyndall's Belfast Address, 1874

Christian mortalism incorporates the belief that the human soul is not naturally immortal; and may include the belief that the soul is uncomprehending during the time between bodily death and resurrection, known as the intermediate state. "Soul sleep" is an often pejorative term so the more neutral term "materialism" was also used in the nineteenth century, and "Christian mortalism" since the ...
